MANAGEMENT DISCUSSIONS & ANALYSIS

Industry Structure & Development (Overview)

The Indian textile industry is one of the largest and oldest sectors in the country and among the most important in the economy in terms of output, investment and employment. The sector employs nearly 35 million people and after agriculture, is the second-highest employer in the country. Its importance is underlined by the fact that it accounts for around 4% of GDP, 14% of industrial production, 9% of excise collections, 18% of employment in the industrial sector, and 16% of the country's total exports earnings. With direct linkages to the rural economy and the agriculture sector, it has been estimated that one of every six households in the country depends on this sector, either directly or indirectly, for its livelihood.

Globally there are clear indications that textiles and apparel production is consolidating, with production after quota – abolition shifting towards Asian countries which have a strong raw material base and abundant cheap labour. India has been blessed with both and this along with other factors will make it one of the biggest beneficiaries of this global trend. To top it, domestic demand for textiles is increasing, led by rising income levels, demographics, growth in organized retailing and household boom in India.

To take advantage of these trends, most Indian textile companies are expanding capacities across the value chain in area of design, yarn, fabric, garments and retail. The sector is also witnessing a rising wave of entrepreneurship, resulting in the spawning of several start ups. In the past few years, with a growing number of new entrants and expansion by existing companies, the textile and apparel sector has taken rapid strides.

Opportunities and threat, Risk & Concerns

In the current financial year the growth of textiles exports is expected to be slower due to the recession which has taken place across the globe. The company's wide, large and exclusive product portfolio will give boost to increase market share in export and also enable the company to tap new markets.

Secondly political stability and good monsoon will boost our economy resulting in increased demand for textile products. The Indian domestic textile market is witnessing strong growth led by young consuming population, its fast growing economy, rising income levels, and over 30 % growth in the organized retail sector. This increase in demand will enable the company to achieve higher sales which will lead to improved performance of the company.
